This course was very difficult. For an introductory course, the basics we never sufficiently addressed. The lectures often bordered on incoherent and most of the supplementary readings didn't do much to alleviate my confusion. I was never totally sure what knowledge was required for the exam. Tim was phenomenal. He was always able and willing to answer my questions and was able to deftly simplify the complexities of the subject matter. I would recommend him highly

Tim was very helpful, receptive, and thoughtful in his explanations. Recitation was often more helpful than class.

I think the course could have included student presentations or some kind of research paper. I felt the midterm was deceptively tricky & I could have demonstrated my knowledge better ~~through~~ another kind of project.

The lectures were very confusing. Some times things did not match up or made no sense together. They were dull and NOT everything was confusing. Tim was helpful in clearing it up, but rec was helpful in person though not really could at communicating effective in front but terrible in smaller groups.

Alec Marantz = very structured powerpoints , but sometimes tangents get a little too heady without much clarification

Brian McElree - presentation is often jumbled , points are ultimately clear but am sometimes confused at how we arrive there

Tim Leffel = AWESOME. Very helpful recitation sections organized , intuitive

Tim and Luiza are both excellent teachers - knowledgeable, passionate, accessible. The course suffered, I think, because of its compressed timeframe; in addition, the breadth of the subject matter and its necessarily superficial treatment made it somewhat difficult to engage with the course. I would recommend this course only to a friend with a deep interest in linguistics (I am only taking it to fulfill a social science requirement).

The instructors were both very helpful and well organized. They were always well organized and clear with lectures. However it would be more preferable for them to speak more actively and engage in drawing the students' attention (to make it more fun) to enjoy the class more.

I think that the phonology part was the most challenging and even though it was summer session, could have been slowed down a little.

Both instructors were very informative and challenged us to think outside the box.

I thought recitation was really useful and often more informative for me than the actual lecture.

I think sometimes we talked about homework a little too long at the beginning but overall

I thought the format was good. Also Tim was very prompt in email responses, and if he asked him a question he didn't know he emailed us as soon as he knew.

Thanks!

Recitation is the only way I understood anything in this class. Tim was extremely helpful, had well-organized recitations, and responded promptly and completely to emails. I love him.

TIM IS A GODSEND. HE IS EXTREMELY GOOD AT BREAKING DOWN LECTURE INTO MANAGEABLE CONCEPTS AND EXPLAINING THEM THOROUGHLY AND CLEARLY.
ALWAYS WILLING TO HELP AND GREAT ABOUT RESPONDING TO EMAILS.

Tim was very helpful in this course. He was always willing to help and made the class topics very clear in our recitations. I enjoyed having him as a TA!

Recitations exceeded expectations. Explanations and course content were clear, helpful, and probably necessary to complete problem sets. Though this suggestion may be strange, I suggest mandatory recitation attendance (if it was mandatory already if isn't that apparent) so that I won't be so tempted to skip...

I liked that we were able to go back over lecture topics because talking about them in a different format made me able to understand much better. Even more of this would have been ~~been~~ helpful. Also thought it was definitely easy to communicate w/ you regarding homework, etc.

Recitations were very helpful in understanding the material.
Things that weren't clear or were confusing in lecture were clarified in recitation.

Tim's recitations were very helpful, I always had trouble understanding lectures and Tim was very understanding and went over stuff in detail.

I never went to office hours but e-mail correspondence was really great!

Tim was great ~~and difficult too~~, he really helped to clarify and reinforce important points from lecture and from the readings. Obviously, without him I think we all would have been kind of lost.

Tim was great. Everything that didn't make sense in lecture became clear in recitation. He is very organized, ~~and~~ knowledgeable, amusing and nice. I love the face he makes when he asks for volunteers or questions. It has actually compelled me to draw trees on the board. HE ROCKS!!

Professor Baltin is an extremely nice and intelligent man - he knows a ton about his field and clearly has a passion for it. However, his lectures are less than interactive and slightly hard to follow, making understanding the material in class more difficult than it ^{might} ~~could~~ have been. I think a lot of background knowledge is assumed. The TA was extremely helpful, though, and Prof. Baltin himself is always willing to answer questions.

One thing that I thought was very helpful was when Mark included a written complement (like a handout) ... it made the lecture ~~more~~ easier organized and easier to follow along.

Sometimes Mark's notes on the board were hard to follow, so having something clear and concise was very helpful.

The thing I appreciated most about this course is how organized it was. The syllabus was clearly laid out and followed, and the weekly problem sets always helped clarify the material. Occasionally I struggled to understand the professor, but the recitation sessions were very helpful in clearing everything up.

The professor is very informative and helpful. Though he is easy to get along with, there is a sense of disorganization in his lectures. Perhaps it is his atrocious handwriting. Maybe it is the fact that he admits he is lazy? However all of these negative traits are forgivable. I learned a lot from Bellini.

This course/instructor was very knowledgeable and informative, but quite dry. It was often hard to focus because of a lack of structure and perceived enthusiasm.

PROF. BALTIM IS CLEARLY BRILLIANT, BUT UNFORTUNATELY THIS IS SOMETIMES MUDDLED BY A LACK OF ORGANIZATION IN LECTURE. LOOKING BACK, I KNOW THAT I'VE LEARNED A LOT, BUT THERE WERE DEFINITELY TIMES WHEN EVERYTHING JUST WENT COMPLETELY OVER MY HEAD.

Some of the long discussions we had in recitation were ~~more~~ interesting, but not particularly useful. Toward the end of the semester you were better at saving them for the end, but sometimes they seemed too long.

C. SUMMARY

1. What has your TA done especially well?

Tim clarified topics that were left vague in lecture.

He also offered extra (but interesting) information in areas that piqued our curiosity. He made clear that he was available outside of class to help with not only coursework but also other topics related to semantics.

2. Do you have specific suggestions for improvement? If so, please elaborate.

Discussions could have encouraged a more active involvement.

C. SUMMARY

1. What has your TA done especially well?

The lectures were somewhat disorganized though I enjoyed the practice of creating hypotheses and evaluating them. This was incredibly refreshing and useful but course content for HW and tests was secondary, the recitation did a great job of compensating for this.

Comments

Papers, which were the bulk of the grade of the course, were not related to class topics and expectations were not clear.

Loved this class, knew it was going to be hard for me, but yeah, class was awesome.

While the professor's lectures were very informative and useful I wish there had been a lab section to this class so that we could quickly recap on what the main parts of each lecture were. Other than that I thought this was a great class.

What were the instructor's strengths? Weaknesses?

- Tim is a very chill guy who knows a lot about the topic he teaches, though was easy to get off track
- First off, Ming Xiang did not have anything to do with this course. This was all Tim and Diane. I must rate Tim as being one of the best professors I've had at this university. Incredibly attractive and engaging, he maintains a sense of youth and chill not found among other professors. He is clearly an expert in his field and is always eager to find ways to engage students in as effective a way as possible. To this end, he was incredibly innovative in his approach to teaching a class that was divided between linguistics majors and psychology majors. His strongest suit, however, was how hard-working he was. He clearly put a lot of thought into crafting lesson plans that began with common-sense basics and built up into getting into scientific studies. He was willing to convene an extra session for those interested in programming. He crafted his own course website that was honestly better organized than Chalk. He went above and beyond in reaching out to students to make sure they had a bridge to the material. His only weakness was that his voice was a bit stoner-like, but honestly that just adds to his chill so I can't complain.
- Leffel was a fantastic lecturer who summarized a lot of the key points of psycholinguistics for us. Despite the original professor not being able to teach this quarter, Leffel did a great job emphasizing key ideas and issues for us and was always open for discussion. Really chill class~~~
- Tim is so sweet! It felt like he was learning about all of this alongside us, but that was a good thing, because it meant he was really excited to talk about all of it. He made class really interesting! He could get distracted sometimes, but for the most part, he was really good at explaining concepts until people really understood them.
- the instructor had a lot of first-hand knowledge about his own area but not as much as a border survey of the topic required.
- Strengths: interested in the course subject matter and enthusiastic about it; open to questions and tangents; fun lecturer Weaknesses: sometimes got lost in discussion and lost track of time, so we couldn't finish everything for a lecture
- Amir was very enthusiastic about the topics covered in class. My criticism is that he often let class discussion spiral into everyone sharing anecdotes, which I found very unhelpful. I think he could have steered the discussion a bit more.
- strengths: always made lecture interesting and would allow discussion to go on small tangents if it seemed like the class was interested. weaknesses: sometimes wouldn't put readings up until night before, also there were sometimes different readings listed under the same day on the "readings" "schedule" and "syllabus" tab
- Tim is great! He was always willing to help in any way he could. It was clear that he was very passionate about the topic and enjoyed teaching the course. Great guy!
- Tim was great! He is very passionate and knowledgeable about what he teaches as well as teaching itself. I would have appreciated some more clarity/time for course schedule kind of stuff, but I also did like that Tim was very chill and reasonable about expectations for assignments. I really felt like Tim's priority was sharing his knowledge with us and I thought that was amazing. Always looked forward to class! Also presentations were really well organised.

What were the teaching assistant's or writing intern's strengths? Weaknesses?

- Diane was great! She always seemed understanding and patient and was a neat sidekick to Tim. Her contributions were always appreciated, though I wish she had spoken more! Even a day where she presented her own research would have been neat. No real weaknesses on her end.
- Diane was a very sweet person! She gave fair feedback on our homework assignments. She was available outside of class for lingering questions.
- Diane was really nice!
- she provided detailed feedback on the assignments
- Strengths: very knowledgeable, open to questions, participated in lecture Weaknesses:NA
- n/a
- diane gave good feedback on assignments but it always took quite a while to get them back.
- Diane was great!
- Diane was approachable, friendly.

What, if anything, what would you change about this course and why?

- It seemed much more a course for Psych majors on Linguistics than a Psych topic for Linguistics major. 7/10 of the class was review of Intro to Ling, Morphology, and Syntax. It only got really interesting as a Ling class in the last weeks when we conducted a pseudo experiment.
- The only weakness was that the first half of the class was spent largely catching the psychology majors up to speed with linguistics, without much in the way of teaching linguistics majors more stuff about psychology. As a linguistics major, I felt pretty bored during a lot of the beginning. I wouldn't want to propose making Intro to Ling a prerequisite, which would shut out a lot of psych majors who would benefit from learning this stuff. I also wouldn't want to propose splitting up the class because having varied perspectives is valuable in the kind of interdisciplinary work that psycholinguistics demands. There really isn't a good solution to this issue, and Tim certainly did the best he could given his resources.

- Nothing.
- Maybe more readings? I know that sounds nuts, but it'd have been nice to get some more context for the real-world stuff and history behind the concepts we were learning about.
- I would make this class not cross-listed for ling and psych. I feel that it really held us because we spent most of the time going over things that were basic to either one half of the class or the other.
- I would make sure that the research requirement and the options were explained and set up earlier.
- I think it would have been helpful to more carefully delineate between the portions of the course that cover theory, anthropological perspectives, psychological/research perspectives, etc. or something along those lines to give the course a bit more structure.
- I did appreciate the 1.5 week long "lab session," however it made it so that the homework load was much heavier for the first half of the course. Though it is nice when a course gets much easier at the end, it might have been better overall if the readings and lecture material were just spread out more evenly.
- n/a
- Perhaps a more condensed lab component (lab was great but could have been covered in lesser classes) and more material in the second half.

Is there any topic in this course that you wished you had had previous background in?

- no
- As a linguistics major, nope.
- Pokemon
- A little more psychology
- I wish I had more background in basic psychology
- NA
- no
- no
- no.
- no

Which texts were most useful?

- LOL I didn't read any of the texts, sorry. The Pinker book looked useful?
- Grice and mostly all the papers posted online
- n/a
- the research papers
- Sedivy - Language in Mind; Rastle et al.; Pinker - The Language Instinct
- Schepper-Hughes, Levi-Strauss, Evans-Pritchard, Malinowsky, Simmel
- textbook (very well written but chapters are a bit longer than needed imo), Snedeker & Gleitman, Markman, Rastle,
- the articles he assigned were interesting
- Most were good reads - reasonable in length and interesting content

Which least?

- Yeah I didn't read any of the texts, but the textbook looked boring.
- The textbook regurgitated what we already discussed in class, but it's a good complement.
- n/a
- the textbook
- Grice - Logic and Conversation
- Arnold, Orr, Rozin and Haidt, Kafka, Dostoevsky
- Cowie
- the textbook

How productive was class discussion?

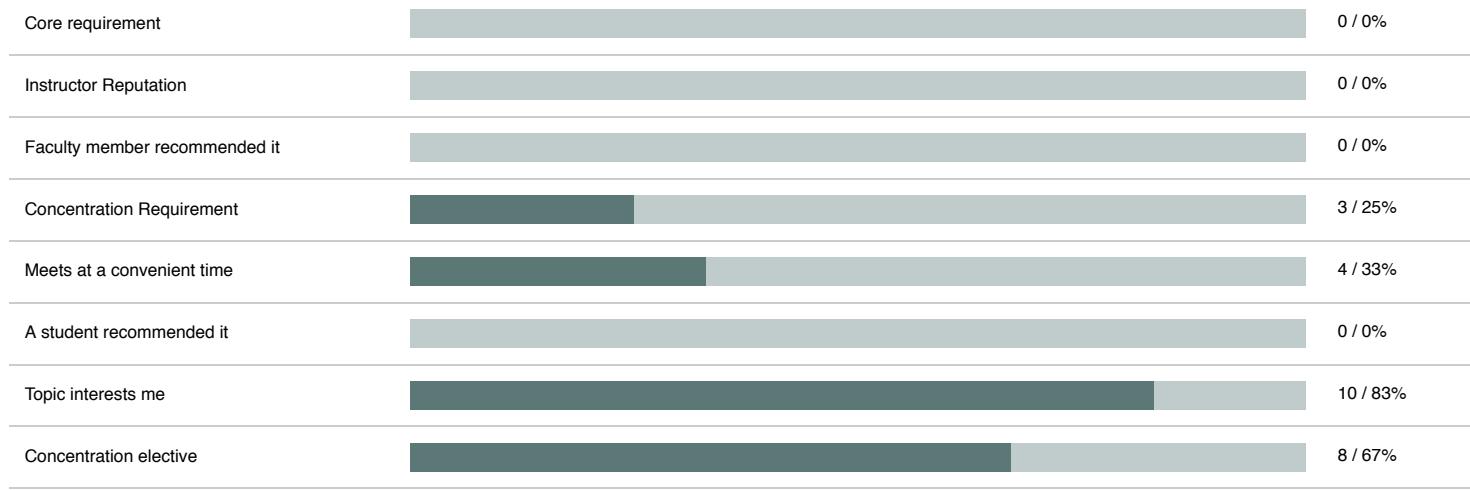

- let to tangents but all fell within the realm of psycholinguistics
- Incredibly so. One of Tim's gifts was asking the right kinds of questions that really engage the class, which was never boring. At times, we would stray off-topic, because Tim never wanted to discourage any student's path to learning the material. It is rare to find a class like Tim's where so many people feel like talking all the time. Overall, Tim was good at harnessing the class' collective knowledge and understanding to prove a point about the material we were covering in class.
- Very, but the class was 1:30 in the afternoon after lunch, so some days were very slow.
- Pretty good!

- class discussion was usually lively and speculative
- Very! It was a lot of fun and allowed us to learn about the aspects of psycholinguistics we were most interested in. We were also able to ask questions a lot and clarify if we needed it.
- not that productive for most of the time, save a few instances of very productive and thought-provoking discussion.
- normally it was very productive. Tim encouraged a lot of enthusiasm from both the psychology majors and linguistics majors in the class so there was always someone wanting to make a comment, and their comments were usually productive and interesting.
- Tim managed to involve everyone and the discussions were great
- Good. Most people brought different ideas to the table which was nice.

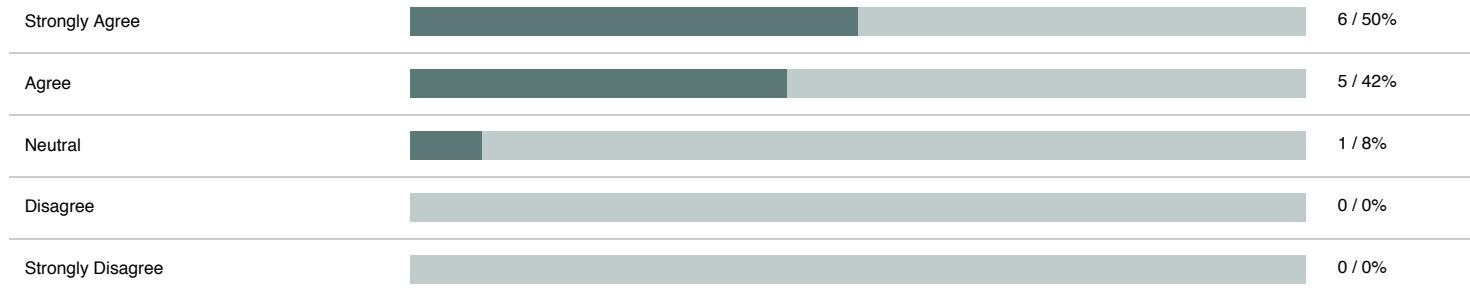

How has this course contributed to your education?

- It made me value people like Timothy Leffel, who brighten this world with their generosity, charm, and good looks, not to mention impeccable sense of style and...those tattoos. I guess it also helped me learn some stuff about the experimental side of linguistics, and having hands-on experience running an experiment was pretty neat.
- I know how research in the linguistics field works, which as a linguistics major, I am very interested in and want to do more work on.
- I learned about psycholinguistics!
- I feel more comfortable reading psycholinguistics research papers and understanding the goals/methods/outcomes of the experiments
- It has taught me a lot about linguistics that I didn't know before, especially bilingualism.
- While I'm not coming out of this course with much concrete knowledge I did gain a sense of awareness of how different cultures view certain mental states. I will use the skills I learned in this class to do research and literature reviews of my own.
- As a psychology major this was a great way to introduce linguistics into my academics. I now have a background in basic linguistic theory and also basic research designs in psycholinguistics.
- I knew nothing about linguistics and now I'm interested in the topic more.
- Totally thinking of taking another course in this area
